

My Questions to all Muslims

- My question to all those who claim that only Muslim's will go to heaven. Is it not injustice that Muslims will go to heaven, because you were born in a Muslim family, if they were born in a non-Muslim family, so, they will be non-Muslim right now? Is it not injustice?
- Is God so cruel and mean that if you worship someone else other than him or don't believe at all in any religion, so, he won't accept you. If God is such, then there will be no God because this kind of selfishness is not even present in normal human being.
- Is doing physical actions out of fear of hell and greed of heaven worship, so, it means people of North Korea are actually worshipping Kim-un-Jong because they are doing what he orders them and praise him all the time. No, they are not worshipping him ,they are just afraid of him, worshipping is feeling grateful to have this life not for anything else, it is about that a person has realised this life is precious, also for being grateful God can't force or scare someone, if anyone feels to be his grateful or not, it is his choice, it is actually choice of person which makes it worship not physical actions, but if God force or scare him from hell for worshipping, maybe he will do those actions, but they will be just actions not worship and that is what is happening to almost all Muslims, they think they are worshipping to God, no they are just doing physical actions nothing else, because they are doing them without their actual choice, they are just doing them out of compulsion , because from their childhood they were taught by these bookish scholars that if you worship God you will go to heaven if you don't God will punish you, so, basically from their childhood greed and fear is being implanted in them.

I met across so many people who told me in this regard that God is not forcing or scaring someone to worship him, he is only saying to worship me, but when I see in reality almost 100% are doing their worship out of fear of hell or greed of heaven. Not a single one is doing it with gratefulness. Because of this mindset they will never really know what is worship or devotion to God, even if they do their worship which they think is worship for 100 crore year's.

- Assume you give a person hundred rupees and that person don't show any sign of gratefulness to you. If you have given him 100 rupees out of love then his reaction won't affect you, but if you have given him out of expectation that he will thank you and praise you then it will hurt you, maybe, you will abuse him, but you won't beat him physically or kill him. Apply the same example, God gives a human a life out of love not with this purpose that he will worship or praise me, if God has given a human being life out of love, then he should not expect anything in return of that if that person shows gratitude to him or not, worship him or not, then it is love but if God expect he (that person) should worship me, praise me then God is a trader not a lover, then he should not claim that he loves a human being, then God should say I am a trader . And if God punish him (that person) for not worshipping, then God is not only selfish but a cruel and merciless personality. Because even a normal human being will not punish someone if he doesn't show him any sign of gratefulness in return of 100 rupees, but being a God how can he (God) punish someone if he doesn't show him gratitude (don't worship him).

Please think about it!
